Synopsis

Instamart and HPCL launch India's first on-demand LPG cylinder delivery service. Consumers can now order HP Navya composite LPG cylinders via the Instamart app. This new service requires no existing domestic LPG connection for ordering. First-time orders are new cylinder purchases, while subsequent orders are refills. The partnership aims to enhance LPG accessibility through a digitally enabled platform.

Instamart Launches LPG Cylinder Delivery In Partnership With HPCL

Instamart, India's quick commerce platform, on Tuesday announced a partnership with Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited (HPCL) to launch the country's first on-demand LPG cylinder delivery service on a quick commerce platform.

The tie-up also marks the market debut of HPCL's newly launched 'HP Navya,' a next-generation 10 kg composite LPG cylinder.

The service will first go live in Bengaluru, where consumers will be able to order the HP Navya cylinder directly through the Instamart app, along with the existing 5 kg metal LPG cylinder.

According to the companies, no existing domestic LPG connection will be required to place an order, making the service available to a wider base of consumers, including students, working professionals, and smaller households that may not hold a formal gas connection.

First-time orders will be fulfilled as new cylinder purchases, with identity verification and proof-of-delivery documentation built into the process. Subsequent orders will be treated as refills, with the empty cylinder collected at the time of delivery.
